MEMORANDUM.

CAPITAL ACCOUNT.

THE increase of 151,871 l. 16 s. to Capital Account was incurred in completing a second line of communication from Kurrachee to Bushire, between which places there are now two substantial separate lines, viz., a submarine cable and a coast land line from Kurrachee to Jask (a point eastward of the Persian Gulf), and two submarine cables from Jask to Bushire. These lines correspond with the double overland wires from London to Bushire, viâ Prussia, Russia, and Persia.

REVENUE ACCOUNT.

The Revenue Account shows a decrease of nearly 20,000 l. when compared with former years, which is attributable to two causes:—

1st. To the reduced tariff insisted upon at the International Telegraph Convention of Vienna in 1868, and to the number of Indo-European messages not increasing in proportion to the reduction.

2nd. To the establishment of a competitive route to India, viâ the Red Sea.

The tariff to India is, however, again being raised, and certain reductions in working expenses are being effected. The result of these measures will, it is anticipated, produce a fair surplus of income over expenditure during the ensuing year.
